

LGBT Activists and Perversion

Harry Hay

Harry Hay was "the founder of the gay movement in America."

"...[I]f the parents and friends of gays are truly friends of gays, they would know from their gay kids that the relationship with an older man is precisely what thirteen-, fourteen-, and fifteen-year-old kids need more than anything else in the world. And they would be welcoming this, and welcoming the opportunity for young gay kids to have the kind of experience that they would need." (Harry Hay At New York University 1983)

Larry Kramer

Larry Kramer was a leading gay rights activist and founder of the "queer-led" terrorist organization ACT UP.

"In those cases where children do have sex with their homosexual elders... I submit that often, very often, the child desires the activity, and perhaps even solicits it, either because of a natural curiosity... or because he or she is homosexual and innately knows it. ... And unlike girls or women forced into rape or traumatized, most gay men have warm memories of their earliest and early sexual encounters; when we share these stories with each other, they are invariably positive ones." Harvey Milk

Harvey Milk was the first openly gay man to be elected to public office; he served as a member of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors from 1978 to 1979.

"[Harvey] Milk's sexual history with young people is well documented. Milk's biographer Randy Shilts in 'The Mayor of Castro: the Life and Times of Harvey Milk,' spends half a dozen pages detailing the 33-year-old's sexual relationship with a 16-year-old." Craig Rodwell

Craig Rodwell, a leading gay activist, told his biographer that from the age of 13 to 14 he had sex with "hundreds of men." Rodwell went on to say, "This is what I lived for, literally. And that's all I thought about all day long, just so I could get downtown and go cruising....It had a great sense of freedom about it and adventure and, oh, I met all kinds of guys...." Prostasia Foundation

While it claims to be a "child protection organization," Prostasia is in fact one of the leading advocacy groups to normalize sexual relationships between adults and minors, or as it prefers to call them "Minor-Attracted Persons." The group regularly downplays the criminality of such relationships and instead focuses on reducing the "stigma" surrounding individuals who engage in such abhorrent acts. The bulk of its advocacy focuses on lawful possession and sale of child-like sex dolls, supports the "sexual depiction of minors in drawings and cartoons," argues that "sex offense registries do almost nothing to protect children from abuse," and published a blog post where a "kinky person" mentions fantasizing about being touched non-consensually while pretending to be a child.

"Criminalizing similar-age teen relationships, withholding comprehensive sex education, stigmatizing porn, sex work, and the LGBT community, and censoring Internet platforms... are all bad ideas that gained traction because no child protection group stood up to oppose them." (Prostasia Twitter, July 2018)

Prostasia blog editor Sheila van den Heuvel-Collins tweeted, "Merry Christmas to everyone, including the nepiophiles [someone who has sex with infants], pedophiles, hebephiles [someone who sex with minors between 11 and 14] and ephebophiles [someone who has sex with adolescents between 15 and 19] who have to put up with stigma every single day of the year." B4U-Act

Another advocacy group for "Minor-Attracted Persons," B4U-Act also works to normalize perverse relationships between adults and minors. In addition to countering "stigma," B4U-Act has additionally supported studies to provide a "scientific basis" for its advocacy. Some of these studies have been conducted at Nottingham Trent University in the United Kingdom, Royal Ottawa Mental Health Centre, and McGill University in Montreal.

"Forcing minor-attracted people to remain secretive and without access to mental health care does not protect children. Stigmatizing and stereotyping minor-attracted people inflames the fears of minor-attracted people... without contributing to an understanding of minor-attracted people or the issue of child sexual abuse.... Perpetuating secrecy, stigma, and fear can lead to hopelessness and even self-destructive or abusive behavior on the part of minor-attracted people, and disrupts the fabric of society." (B4U-Act FAQ)

"It is important to realize that these sexual feelings [for minors] are usually accompanied by feelings of emotional attraction, similar to the romantic feelings most adults have for other adults. It is also vitally important to note that the presence of such feelings do not imply anything about behavior; non-criminological researchers note that many minor-attracted people live within the law." NAMBLA

The North American Man/Boy Love Association (NAMBLA) was founded in 1978 with the stated goal of ending "the extreme oppression of men and boys in mutually consensual relationships."

"NAMBLA is working to change public perceptions and laws about consensual sexual relationships between adults and minors. Today, the law and public prejudice make little or no distinction between a man who forcibly rapes a child and one who genuinely cares for and loves a boy. Some judges have condemned boy-lovers as being 'worse than murderers,' even though their only 'crime' has been to share their body and affection with a boy in a friendship that includes mutually enjoyable sexual experiences. It is a shame that in American society, it is a greater crime to love a child than it is to beat—or even kill—a child." (NAMBLA, "Boys Speak Out On Man/Boy Love")
